The Phantom The Complete Series: The Charlton Years Volume 4 (Phantom Comp Series Hc Charlton Years)

Synopsis

The mid-1970s comic book adventures of The Phantom return in full, glorious color! Hermes Press is collecting all 74 issues of The Phantom comic books that ran from 1962-1977. The Charlton comic book version of the grand-daddy of costumed heroes, The Ghost Who Walks, is available again, digitally remastered to look better than the original books. This volume presents the last efforts of stalwart Pat Boyette, with artwork by Mario Pedrazzi, Sante D'Amico, and Frank Bolle. Also featured is an exhaustive essay on the artists who created these books and other special features.

Customer Reviews

Once you get past the first few mini stories of Pat Boyette's art, you'll see artwork that is quite similar to that of THE PHANTOM newspaper comic strip of the mid 60's (Sy Barry). Wow! Lignante's art is absolutely awesome in the GOLD KEY and KING books (which I read in comic books as a boy); Aparo was very good in the first CHARLTON book; and Pedrazzi, D'Amico, and Bolle are excellent in this new CHARLTON edition. Really took me back to reading the Sunday comics as a kid in the 1960s. This volume returns to stories longer than the seven page stories of the last two CHARLTON volumes; and while Mr. Boyette's art is just fine, it is quite different in style to what I consider the "true" look of the Phantom I remember from my youth. Pedrazzi and D'Amico recall that great period of Phantom art in this volume. Silver Age fans won't be disappointed.

One of the earlier heroes and it's great to see the stories reprinted in color and chronologically for a new audience. Hopefully a lot more people will be able to pick this up. They call him the ghost who walks- but he's just a guy in a mask- like every episode of Scooby doo. enjoy

Love the phantom series. Bought it as a gift for a friend. He was thrilled.

I love the artwork - reminiscent of Sy Barry.

good for collection but doesn't have many stories in it...waste of money

Great Book. Great service
