My youth intern gave me this book to help me get over my struggles. him and i are very open with each other and we have a very personal relationship. He knows my past and he honestly wants to help me. he told me he read it in his 10th grade year and that it helped him tremendously. i'm only on the 5th chapter and i've already been moved so much. I look forward to reading the rest of this book. I hope i can remember what he did for me for a long time. by the way, i'm only 14. If you're having struggles ORDER THIS BOOK. i don't care if you have any doubts about the book, if you do when you start to read the first chapter you'll be glad you bought this book.

My son zoomed through and completely enjoyed this book. He even shared its contents with me during dinner conversations. It has a good focus on God and a good center for what a boy should be reading about. There is even a section that answers some of the tougher topics (tough for a single mom and a boy to discuss.)

This book is really speaking in to my teen son's life. He is learning what it means to be God's man.

This book lays out a great opportunity for a young man to consider how serious he is about "walking the talk" - making choices that enable them to put into practice the standards of the Christian faith with God's help. Great for a maturing young guy who may be wondering if the faith he was raised in is going to help him deal with the challenges of real life. Best for a young man who seems genuinely open to testing out his faith and taking responsibility as a mark of evolving manhood.

This was a great book. I enjoy the fact that it is geared towards young people and does hold your attention. It would be a great tool for dads to sit down with their sons and read it together.

Great resource for moms especially to understand what their teenage boy is facing. Also gives you tools to help support him in his battle to be a godly young man.

This book deals with practical obstacles and circumstances in a young man's life. This is a good book for High School and College Students!
